Think and Do:

- If you were the illustrator for a book you read- how would you portray the characters of the story? Create an interesting cover illustration for any one of the books from this list that you read over summer. See that the title and author can be identified from your cover illustration. Make it as colorful and interesting as you possibly can. You are free to paint or color with watercolors, crayons or color pencil. You may also use collage art to complete your work. Do this on a 8x11 poster board. Your work will be displayed when you return to school in August.
